

Prof. Giovanni Fattore holds a “Laurea” in Economics from Bocconi University, a MSc in Health Policy and Management from Harvard University and a PhD in Social Policy from the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). Currently, he serves as Full Professor of Public Management and Policy at Bocconi University, where he has also held the position of Head of the Policy Analysis & Public Management Department (now the Department of Social and Political Sciences).

Prof. Fattore’s research spans several key areas, including health policy, health economics, health technology assessment, food policy, public management and public administration reforms. More recently, his work has explored issues related to ageing and the application of Artificial Intelligence in healthcare. In 2015, he served as the Scientific Director of the World Conference of the International Health Economics Association (iHEA) held in Milan. He is an Associate Editor of Health Policy and an active member of the WHO networks "Health Systems Policy Monitor" and "Financial Protection Forum." His academic contributions include approximately 200 scientific articles, books, and book chapters.