WTO as A Social Contract

by Dr GUAN Wenwei

Abstract

Through a brief introduction of the basic Three, Two, One of the WTO, the Three basic functions, the Two groups of countries between the developed and the developing, and the One principle of non-discrimination, the talk elaborates the jurisprudence of the WTO as an emancipatory international social contract on trade. The talk explains how the WTO operates within the reign of state primacy—the force—ultimately for the benefits of individuals—the ends—in the global marketplace, and gains a soul of its own in the institutional evolution—the means—of the global trading regime. During this evolution, WTO has successfully made governments accountable to foreign individuals in various capacities either as traders of goods, providers of services, or holders of IP rights within the global marketplace. The talk offers a unified WTO jurisprudence looking at the WTO as an international social contract on trade allowing a fresh look at the force, the means, and the ends of the constitutional evolution of the global trading regime. Hopefully, this is a timely discussion within the context of the contemporary haze of free trade fragmentation where local and regional trade protectionism on the rise.
