Part II Course Details

Abstract

This course aims to critically examine the theories and methods used in defining, interpreting, and protecting intangible heritages and indigenous cultures. It will engage in current debates about the ownership and authenticity of heritage, by taking into account the approaches and interests of different stakeholders and the negotiations of cultural memories, religious identities, economic resources, and political struggles at the local, national, and global level. Through exploring historical and ethnographic materials, reading documents on international organizations, public policy, and legal frameworks, the course will address heritage both as a professional field for transmitting shared system of rituals, practices, values and experiences, and as a lens onto broader processes of social, cultural and political change. Students shall learn to explore the multiple meanings and constructed nature of cultural heritage and to work towards developing a comparative understanding of indigenous cultures not only in China but also around the world.

Assessment Rubrics (AR)

Assessment Task

Class participation and performance

Criterion

Performance in class discussion tasks and in-class activities

Excellent (A+, A, A-)

Strong evidence of:

- Active pre-class preparation and in-class participation, positive and interactive learning
- Adequate ability to engage in group tutorials, express ideas, and elaborate on comments based on familiarity with class materials

Good (B+, B, B-)

Some evidence of:

- Active pre-class preparation and in-class participation, positive and interactive learning
- Ability to engage in group tutorials, express ideas, and elaborate on comments based on familiarity with class materials

Fair (C+, C, C-)

Limited evidence of:

- Active pre-class preparation and in-class participation, positive and interactive learning
- Ability to engage in group tutorials, express ideas, and elaborate on comments based on familiarity with class materials

Marginal (D)

Marginally satisfies the basic requirements of participation in classes and tutorials

Failure (F)

Fails to meet minimum requirements of participation

Evidence of critical thinking

Excellent (A+, A, A-)

Strong evidence of:

- Ability to show a firm grasp of concepts discussed
- Ability to accurately and concisely summarize materials
- Critical and insightful analysis, ability to express personal ideas, good sense of context
- Good grammar and spelling

- Cite readings and other sources appropriately

Good (B+, B, B-)

Some evidence of:

- Ability to show a firm grasp of concepts discussed
- Ability to accurately and concisely summarize materials
- Critical and insightful analysis, ability to express personal ideas, good sense of context
- Good grammar and spelling
- Cite readings and other sources appropriately

Fair (C+, C, C-)

Limited evidence of:

- Ability to show a firm grasp of concepts discussed
- Ability to accurately and concisely summarize materials
- Critical and insightful analysis, ability to express personal ideas, good sense of context
- Good grammar and spelling
- Cite readings and other sources appropriately

Marginal (D)

- Shows a general grasp of concepts discussed but with minor errors or misinterpretations
- Ability to address selected text(s) and other materials
- No clear contextualization or personal comments
- Few grammar or spelling mistakes
- Cites readings and other sources acceptably

Failure (F)

- Misunderstands concepts from lectures and selected texts
- Limited familiarity with the facts of the materials
- Unsystematic ideas and weak ability to express the subject matter or relevant themes
- Poor grammar and spelling
- Cites readings and other sources inappropriately

Assessment Task

Final Paper

Criterion

This assessment will grade on students' ability of critical thinking through effective writing and oral communication. The final paper must be original, convincing, and well-presented in academic form. Students should demonstrate the ability to utilize and analyze materials critically, in order to raise insightful questions and build up arguments in an organized, structured manner.

Excellent (A+, A, A-)

Strong evidence of:

- Rich and informative content, ability to integrate various materials
- Rigorous organization, coherent structure, and systematic composition
- Ability to interpret and analyze materials critically
- Ability to draw from sufficient and organized references to support the writing
- Precise and fluent expression, appropriate grammar, spelling and citation
- Creative and insightful ideas, ability to make a convincing argument, show an in-depth or extensive knowledge of the subject matter
